TURNING TO REPUBLICANS.

Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, and Governor Judson Harmon, of Ohio, are about to engage in a hand to hand fight for the Pennsylvania delegates to the next national Democratic convention. Governor Harmon has already invaded this State and has, it is suspected, seen the proper bosses. Governor Wilson is killed to appear in the State within the next few days and will confer with those Democratic bosses overlooked by the Ohio executive. In any event it seems certain that both the Presidential candidates will do all in their power to have the Democrats of Pennsylvania back of them in the nominating convention while the Republican candidate for the Presidency who ever he may be, will have the State back of him in the Presidential election by several hundred thousand majority.

A mighty effort has been made to play with the passions of the Republicans of Pennsylvania in the recent contest but the insincerity of the political disturbers has been exposed and is now being held in real contempt. The Republican leaders of the State have been industrious in demanding clean candidates for the offices to be filled in cities, counties and the State. These efforts have simply commanded the admiration of the people and the Republican party is stronger now than it has been for many years.

The Democrats of the State have enjoyed a fight that has resulted practically in extermination. The Keystone and their allies have been exposed as political pretenders and the Republican organization has stood alone, unselfishly and determined to give to the whole people exactly what they want in State and national affairs. As a result a great army of voters who stayed away after mysterious political isms are now turning to the regular Republicans for comfort and political sanity.

WORKS WELL.

When a man in private business falls down on his job he usually gets fired, for it is a well understood axiom that if an employee does not earn money for the firm that is paying him wages it is not good business policy to retain him. In public service, however an official can prove recalcitrant to his duty and totally ignore the public service and hold on to his office to the end of his term, and even then in many instances his hold on politics is so great that he can be re-elected time and again, although he makes no bones of defying the public service and devoting his time and energy at public expense to promoting private interests. It is true that the law in some instances provides for removals or impeachments, but the process is so complicated and hedged in with legal restrictions and so many loop holes provided that the law is almost never invoked, and the public suffers until death or a political revolution makes a new deal.

Now that some of the progressive western States have adopted the recall whereby the people—the employers—can have their say whether or not their hired servants are making good, many of the eastern papers are unduly alarmed, particularly as some of the States have adopted woman suffrage. The Washington Post, in referring to the case in Seattle, where the women largely recalled a mayor who was running the city on wide open policy, says that "the recall tyranny and patrician government go together nicely," and that "the woman of Seattle have made suffrage an orgy." It seems that the professional politicians are afraid of the women, as they are not likely with the power of suffrage in their hands and the right to fire an official if he starts in to graft and pander to the vicious elements, to stand for this sort of thing. The women are usually the worst sufferers on account of the tolerated vices, and with the power to prevent them, and remove them, they see no good reason for not acting.

woman suffrage nor the recall is an orgy.

Perhaps if the recall were in force in every State of the Union some of those legislators both in Congress and the Legislatures who have been successfully blocking policies for the good of the public for years—such as the parcels post, river and road improvements, and others—would find themselves in danger of getting fired, the same as a private employee who falls down on his job, they would work more for the interests of the people. The recall is what is needed, and with the women to help there will not be so many good measures smothered in Congress and the Legislatures, nor so many cities and towns with wide open governments.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

In these days of frenzied finance and big things the popular idea of independent wealth does not fall short of a million dollars, yet the average person who possesses that sum in his mind's eye does not have a clear comprehension of what it means. Discussing a recent magazine article as to whether a million dollars can be honestly accumulated by an individual in a lifetime, the Philadelphia Inquirer gives an interesting talk along this line.

"The point is that the possibility of making a million dollars does not need to be demonstrated by argument because every one can recall for himself instances in which that sum has been accumulated by men as to whose absolute probity no shadow of a doubt could be entertained," says the Inquirer. "It is true that a million dollars is a whole lot of money, much more money than the average imagination can easily grasp. And yet there is no reason why that amount could not be saved in the course of a lifetime."

"The trouble is that most men lack the capacity for self-denial, which accumulation demands, or having it are not endowed with the money making ability. These are the two qualifications upon which attainment to the millionaire class is conducted, and of the two perhaps the first is not the least important. Any one can get rich who devotes all his thoughts and energies to that end and shrinks from no sacrifice which the realization of his ambition may require."

"Only a few months ago the case was reported of a clerk in a New York bank, who never speculated, who had never received more than a very moderate salary and had not engaged in any outside business, yet who left a fortune of over six hundred thousand dollars. He had never married. He had restricted his expenditures to absolute necessities. He had invested his surplus in gilt-edged securities and he had not enlarged his scale of living as his income grew."

"All the pleasure he took in life was in watching his heap increase, and of course, as the years went on it grew and grew with an increasing celerity. Whether the end justified the means, whether it was profitable for this man to spend his life in saving may be questioned, but his experience shows what can be accomplished in this direction if there be first the willing mind. He did not quite reach the million mark because he was unwilling to take any chances. The man who has the money making

Physical culture and skin specialists are urging women to walk more if they would preserve the youthful lines of their figures and keep their skins young.

feature on the side as an amusement. Instead of an orchestra to entertain the waiting patrons, the Celestial installed the rather lowly but nevertheless popular game of craps.

With craps and tea—two cups for a quarter—and of a decided cheering quality, the patronage of the shop suey establishment increased by leaps and bounds, as they say of real estate values in an industrial write-up. Because of the black and tan variety of the patrons, the police became suspicious, and they very inconsiderately raided the Celestial's establishment Saturday night. Nine gentlemen of various shades and colors were caught shooting craps, while the teacups were filled with plain American whisky and gin. In addition to the rounding up of the ten inmates, the police also confiscated two five gallon flagons, one containing whisky and the other gin.

In lieu of a fine of $25 imposed by Burgess Hoyt on the charge of conducting a disorderly house, Lee Yung is spending thirty days in jail, and will likely have to answer later to the charge of selling liquor illegally. The other gentlemen posted forfeits in the sum of $2.50 each.

Not Always Lasting.
 To marry one's ideal would be fine, if we could only be assured of not waking up.

As You Go.
 "Clear up as you go" is an excellent text to work by—a parallel to "Never put off till tomorrow," &c.—and one that many a mother would do well to keep before her and live up to. It is the putting-off habit that leads to accumulations, to hurry, and, consequently, to badly done work. If clothes need repairing, let them be repaired at once; if things are out of their proper places, put them back again, where they ought to be; before they are irretrievably lost.

Pork Favorite Chinese Food.
 The Chinese eat little or no beef. The beef consumed in the empire is chiefly the food of foreigners. But the natives are exceedingly fond of pork and consume vast quantities of it. Not only is the native article an excellent grade, but Chinese pork is retailed at a price far lower than the mere cost of production in this country. American pork could not compete with that of China, even if there were no question of transportation.

Their Particular Sin.
 A school for poor children having read in their chapter in the Bible the denunciations against hypocrites who "strain at a gnat and swallow a camel," were afterwards examined by the benevolent patroness, Lady—, as to their recollection of the chapter. "What, in particular, was the sin of the Pharisees, children?" and the lady, "Ating camels, my lady," was the prompt reply.

Pony vs. Horse Intelligence.
 I have been asked a great many times if ponies are really more intelligent than full-sized horses. They certainly appear to be. But the intelligence of any horse will develop under potting and human companionship, and there is no doubt that other horses, if given the same privileges that ponies enjoy and if their size admitted of their being handled and managed in the same way, would prove equally intelligent.—Outing.

BEING BRISK A GOOD HABIT

Children Should Be Taught Quickness in Running Errands and in Dressing Themselves.

If a child is allowed to acquire a slow, dawdling manner when told to do any particular duty it will be found very difficult to effect a cure, and this means a serious hindrance to success in after years.

Teach them while very young to do everything promptly and to finish what they have commenced. If they are sent on a message make them to clearly understand that they must go direct to the shop and not loiter on the way. Children may be seen at any time carrying a message and lingering to look at everything on the way.

I often wonder at what time the poor mother gets her messages home, when I see a child loitering about instead of walking along briskly. Quickness in dress, also, should be insisted upon. If too young to dress themselves they should be taught to keep still while the mother or sister puts on their clothing.

At a later age forbid any running about the house until fully dressed—and quickly dressed. Some little maidens are rather fond of looking in the glass while dressing and this is a habit which should be at once repressed. It not only encourages vanity but it causes the child to waste much valuable time.

Don't Expect Kindness.
 There are six sorts of people at whose hands you need not expect much kindness. The narrow minded think of nobody but themselves, the lazy are too indifferent, the busy have not time to think, the rich disregard appeals for kindness, the poor have neither spirit nor ability, and the good natured fool is not capable of serving you.—Home Notes.

EVERYBODY'S FRIEND

The old family doctor, of whom so few are now seen in this age of "specialists" was the valued friend and adviser of his patients. They depended on him to keep them in health, and cheer them with his counsel. He taught them the wisdom of preventing illness by watching closely after the health of the family.

Mrs. S. H. DuBois writes from her home at Hempstead, L. I.: "Vinol is an old friend of our family. We have used it for years whenever any of us need a tonic on account of being in a rundown state of health, and it always gives perfect satisfaction. We have used nine bottles this winter."

There are thousands of families who could and do say the same thing: Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, has proved its value by bringing back rugged health and strength to vast numbers of weak, rundown men, women and children. That is why we sell so much and guarantee it to give satisfaction. If it disappoints you, you can have your money back at once. Piper Brothers, Druggists, Charleroi, Pa.

New Heat Unit.
The use of gas for heating as well as lighting has made obsolete the old unit the candle power, owing to the fact that this unit rates merely the brightness of the flame, not the heating power.

Deville and more recent experiments discovered a considerable proportion between the light and heat of a mantle, and using this, makers are rating burners according to the units of heat given to them per unit of time in standard calories. Gas of 5,200 calories efficiency a cubic meter has been recommended as the standard.

The latest designs of burners for heat and lighting require that the gas have a fairly constant consumption, since the maximum efficiency of the burner is attained only when the relative quantities of air and gas are closely regulated. Water gas may be added to prevent excessive variation in calorific value.—America.

Land of Thunderstorms.
Gibraltar is said to be the region of the globe where it thunders oftenest, having thunderstorms on 97 days of the year.

Japanese Fruit Trees.
Among the many ways of their own that the Japanese have for doing is their system of pruning and training fruit trees. The system is called "tana," and consists in training the branches overhead on trellis work made of bamboo or wire supported on wooden posts about five and a half feet high.

This offers advantages in gathering the fruit, and not only serves to protect the trees against wind and storms, but is said to increase production. Only very light pruning is done, and that usually in the winter time. This system is generally adopted for pears and vines, less often for apples and plums.—Youth's Companion

Uses of Nitrate of Soda.
Nitrate is the only nitrogen salt that can be used in solution, as all the other soluble salts of nitrogen become fixed as soon as they come in contact with the soil. However, they become available in a short time. The released sodium may correct soil acidity or may liberate calcium, potassium or magnesium from the soil.

How Perfume is Weighed.
It was the Italian physician Salvani who devised a microbalance of such extreme delicacy that it clearly demonstrated the loss of weight of musk by volatilization. Thus the invisible perfume floating off in the air is indirectly weighed.

The essential part of the apparatus is a very thin thread of glass, fixed at one end and extended horizontally. The microscopic objects to be weighed are placed upon the glass thread near to free end and the amount of flexure produced is observed with a microscope magnifying 100 diameters. A mote weighing one thousandth of a milligram is said perceptibly to bend the thread.—Buffalo Courier.

TAME GULLS OF SHETLAND

Each Family in Lerwick Has Its Own Flock Which the Children Feed.

There are many small villages in the world that have only one street; but Lerwick, in Shetland, besides having only a single street possesses only one tree, and it is not a very tall one either. There are no land birds there, not even a sparrow; but the sea gulls are plentiful.

The inhabitants of Shetland are very proud of their tree and very kind to the gulls, of whom the children make pets. Children who are brought for the first time to see the wonders of one-streeted Lerwick are always shown, as a great curiosity, "the only tree in Shetland."

The sea gulls are the sparrows of Lerwick; and as such they have a greater share in the town's life than the sparrows of London. In the morning you will note that a sea gull sits on every chimney pot. Sea gulls swoop and hover over every roof in town. The air is full of their strange high, plaintive, haunting cries.

Every house has its own familiar sea gulls and every street its own band of them. But, according to the Fruit Magazine, they never mix. The children in each house have a pet name for their own particular sea gulls; and, having called them by those names, they feed them every day.

Each sea gull knows what is meant for him. No bird attached to one house ever seeks to eat the food scattered from the house next door. He does not dare to do so. So all day long the sea gulls hover and call over the roofs of Lerwick.

The people of the town if they come across a little pile of rice laid upon the roadway step over it with care. They know that it has been placed there for some sea gull. And at night the sea gulls leave their appointed chimney pots and fly gracefully away to their resting places on the rocks of the Isle of Noss.

Motoring at Its Best.

Few motorists know of motoring in all its fullness. They drive along country roads for a hundred miles or so, through towns so closely set that they virtually run through one long village, and they think they have motored. They cross the ocean and enjoy the perfect roads of France and Switzerland, and imagine they have experienced all there is in life in the motor car; but no one has ever been brought to a full realization of what motoring really is, or what the wonderful modern machine of man's creative genius is really capable of doing until they have sat in a racing car side by side with an expert driver and tasted the sport as it is under such conditions. Lord Byron once wrote: "What a delectable means of speeding the earth as scarce the eagle in the broad air can accomplish." He certainly spoke in prophecy of the motor car, and especially of the racing machine, which defies distance and shrinks space into the most tiny proportions.—The Columbian.

OLD FASHIONED FAMILY PEW

In That Rested the Strength of the Church, and It Should Be Restored.

One sometimes hears a deal of nonsense about the danger of creating a prejudice against religion in the mind of a child by making him attend church once a week. The danger would seem to be about one-tenth as great as that of arousing a prejudice against education by sending him to school twice a day. In both cases the remedy lies in the good sense of the parents and their estimate of the value of religion and education carefully instilled into the child's mind.

The strength of the church has been in the old-fashioned pew, with father at one end and mother at the other, and a stairway of more or less restless children. From that pew have gone out the upright, devout, consecrated men and women who have loved the church and maintained her worship and done her work in their several generations. For the sake of the church, and especially for the sake of the children, let it be restored.

If it be impossible for the children to attend both Sunday school and the church service, this writer would by all means teach them the catechism at home and bring them to church that they may learn to worship God in the congregation of his people.—South-ern Churchman.

Monarchs of England.

The first to rule over all England was Egbert, King of Wessex, who united all the various petty kingdoms and became King of England in 827. The greater kingdom was disrupted from 878 to 958, when the Danes ruled north of the Thames. In the latter year King Edgar reunited the kingdom and since that time it has never been partitioned. Between Edmund Ironside (1016) and Edward the Confessor (1042) three Danish kings ruled all England. Canute, Harold I. and Hardicanute. The first king of Great Britain was James I (1603). The first king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was George III. From the conquest of Ireland in 1172 by Henry II, the kings of England were styled Lord of Ireland until the assumption of the title King of Ireland by Henry VIII., and thereafter his title was used until the act of union in 1801. The imperial sovereignty of India was assumed by Queen Victoria.

Cheap Mode of Living.

With no rent to pay, no street car fares or other of the usual unavoidable city expenses to meet, the barge and canal boat men of the Netherlands live possibly the most frugal lives of any of the urban working classes in Europe. They, with their families, exist in the hulls of their craft. The rooms are small, with little ventilation, and necessarily low to enable the boats to pass under the bridges. The decks form the children's playground. Chickens are sometimes kept on the boat and consume the garbage.

The Broken Heart.
"The party will recover from this check," said Mayor Craig of Covington, apropos of a temporary setback. "They say the party will be broken. I'd reply that it will be about as much broken as young Lansing's heart."
"A chorus girl who had refused young Lansing said to a friend: 'I have broken his heart, I fear.'"
"You have. You certainly have," the friend replied, "You've broken it right in half."
"In half? What do you mean?"
"I mean that he takes two girls out to supper every night now."

Fostering Talent.
You refuse to allow your son to spell and grammar," said the mother. "Absolutely," replied Mr. cher. "I want him to try his hand at current literature, and I don't propose to spoil his dialect and slang."

Good Mental Tonic.
Appearance means so much to the average woman, mentally as well as physically, the question often arises, "Is she really fit?" Many of the well-known medical men think "make-up" is as good a mental tonic as anyone can take and greatly improve its use, especially for the girl who has some slight personal defect—r, a poor complexion or blood-imp, for the knowledge of her defects makes her shy and oftentimes and miserable.

Purchase the raw nut rather than the desiccated coconut. It is easily put through the food cutter, and, if the finest knife is used, it gives a more easily digested article for cakes or candies than the dried product. If more is ground than can be used, mix sugar with it and dry; it will keep indefinitely.—Good Housekeeping.

"AND MY WIFE, ROSIE," TOO

Bridegroom Who Had Forgotten to Register His New Better Half Quickly Makes Amends.

In spick and span raiment, carrying each a new suit case and a timid expression, they entered the Hotel Naragansett and inquired the way unhesitatingly to the desk, says the Providence Journal.

Spraying a kernel of rice on the youth's hat brim, the clerk smiled covertly, whirled the register with an encouraging flourish and placed the linked pen in the nervous hand.

"John B., New Bedford, Mass.," wrote the youth, pushed back his hat, upset the kernel of rice and wiped his beaded brow.

"But, er—the lady?" inquired the clerk soothingly.

"She's my wife," quoth the youth, straightening up, bristling.

"She ought to be registered," advised the clerk thoughtfully.

"Ain't you put me down?" the lady murmured, looking over the youth's shoulder.

"O, sure, I—forgot. Gimme the pen," said the youth, quickly.

Whereupon he smiled and wrote: "And my wife, Rosie."

Valuable Jamaican Woods.

The most valuable of the Jamaican woods are the yaca, the bully tree, ironwood, hahoe, juniper, cedar, mahogany, lignum vitae, ebony, fiddlewood, yoke, prickly yellow, broad leaf, soapwood, cashew and calabash. Hardwood is used principally for railway sleepers, telegraph poles and fence posts, cedars used chiefly for native shingles and furniture, and other woods are used in building houses in the highlands. Unfortunately the streams are not large enough to log them to the coast, but there is no reason why portable engines and sawmills should not be utilized so as to turn these woods into the market.

Draws the Line at Flies.

We try to sympathize with our dumb animals in their afflictions, but somehow it is rather difficult for us to feel very sorry for the common house fly who ventures too far into our paste pot.—Ohio State Journal.

Nails in Hard Wood.

It will be found almost impossible to drive thin steel nails into hard wood, for the moment you hit them hard enough to puncture the wood they bend over on themselves.

Many people employ the use of a small gimlet to bore the hole destined to hold the nail, and few people know that if yellow soap is rubbed on the nail it can be driven in the hardest wood with ease.

This trick was learned by a carpenter, who discovered it accidentally.

Now whenever he is working with hard wood he keeps a cake of soap near by and sticks it full of nails, using them as he needs them.

He also has a deep hole cut in the handle of his favorite hammer and keeps it filled with soap in which to stick the nails if the cake of soap is not conveniently near.

How Tourists Economize.

A comedy of economy is reported from St. Moritz. A stout couple, accompanied by a son and daughter who were also "thick," as the Germans translate stout, entered a crowded hotel at the busy time of lunch and ordered one lunch at table d'hote. The father sat down and finished two helpings of soup and all the bread near him and left the table, his place being taken for the entrees by his wife, who had been waiting with her children in the hotel corridor until her husband appeared.

The young man then took his mother's place to attack the joint, and he was followed by his sister for the sweets, all doing justice to the menu. In the crowd the tourists did not notice the unusual lunch, but the head waiter did, and when asked for the bill presented one for four lunches. The paterfamilias grumbled a good deal—and paid!

Jealousy.

"So you disapprove of the modern drama?" "Yes," said the constable. "I can't help thinking there's something wrong with these plays we've been getting. The public mind is liable to get confused. I never yet saw a play that made a policeman appear as affable or smart or heroic as a burglar or a confidence man."

The Average Man's Life.

Uncle Pennywise says: "What a drab life the average man leads. I never went to a masked ball, or a polo tournament, or a house party. Never ate a truffle or uttered an epigram. I never even tasted Burgundy, although half my favorite characters in fiction have wallowed in it."

Wifely Ideal Too High.

THE CO-OPERATIVE STORE

Lock No. 4, Pa.

Charleroi, Pa.

We Want to See You---- We'll Treat You Rightly

We know you don't like to be pulled and hauled all over the store, passed through the gauntlet of clerks and finally turned over to the proprietor simply because you don't find what you want, and you don't want some little whippersnapper of a clerk to insist upon your taking what you don't want. You have, doubtlessly been through this ordeal, and vowed that you would never go into that store again. You're right—you don't have to.

Shoes should stand on their merits and a first-class shoe house always has a large enough assortment for a customer to be suited without having something forced on him which he forever dislikes. Come our way. If we cannot possibly suit you we will treat you kindly just the same. One thing certain—if you can't find anything to suit you in our store, you can't find it in Charleroi. And, furthermore, if you don't find that our prices are right, don't spend a cent with us. Fair proposition hey?

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES INSPECTION IS URGED

County Commissioners Have Power to Adopt New System

YES TAKE ADVANTAGE

Some Municipalities in State Having Tests Made by the State Bureau

It is stated that an effort may be made in some quarters, particularly in mining and industrial sections of Washington county, to have the commissioners take advantage of the State law and install a system of weights and measures inspection. The last Legislature enacted a law giving the mayors of cities and the commissioners of counties the privilege of adopting this system, but so far known none of the counties thus far taken advantage of the law.

Some cities have already taken advantage of the opportunity offered by the State bureau of standards, creating a division of the Department of Internal Affairs by the last Legislature. They are Harrisburg, Allentown, Pottsville, McKeesport and Erie. All have sent their official reports and measures to Harrisburg for inspection. James Sweeney, chief of the bureau, says that he expects to receive a fairly busy winter.

Under the act of the last Legislature passed as a corollary of the act of the bureau, the mayor of each city in the State and the commissioners of each county are empowered to appoint local inspectors of weights and measures, members of such officials and the chief within the authority of the act. It is optional with cities whether they shall take advantage of the act or not.

James Sweeney wants it known that individuals cannot send out weights and measures to his bureau to have them tested. All that can be done in this line, under the act, is to test the weights and measures of the local authorities. This is the chief of charge, except that the authorities must bear the expense of transportation. Under the act the State's testing apparatus may be kept at an exact place. Sweeney has provided an act of testing weights, made of hard metal, which will be used. When they are used it is solely for testing the weights and measures that he uses commonly. It is sure that by constant wear they are not being reduced. Articles used for testing the weights and measures are water resistant, it is not presumed that use will wear them down to a reliable degree.

Burglarizes for Stranger

Belle Vernon Boy Says He Was Told to Enter Store and He Entered

Arrested on a charge of breaking and entering and robbing at Belle Vernon, Harry Gilmore, aged 14, claimed that he acted only as a tool for a stranger who disappeared before the loot secured from a Belle Vernon store could be delivered to him. Gilmore claims that he was passing along the street when he was stopped by a man whom he did not know. The man, he said, told him to crawl through a window in the store and get him a suit of clothes and all the money in the drawers. Gilmore complied with the request and entered the store through the window. He had just emerged with the clothes and money when caught by an officer. Information was made against the youngster before Justice Young and he was committed to jail for court after a hearing.

GAME IS SPOILED BY LAW

Celestial's Money-Making Scheme Tampered With

ENJOYED GOOD BUSINESS

Washington people like Truthful James from Table Mountain, are beginning to learn that "four ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen Chinese is peculiar." As the result of a little game he has long pulled over on the officials of the county seat Yee Yung, a Celestial who sought to be in the frenzied finance class, is now languishing in the county jail. It was all on account of some side issue that he introduced in his chop suey establishment over at the county seat.

Realizing that chop suey returns are rather slow, and that the degree of profits depended wholly on the number of patrons, Lee Yung introduced a premium feature that was a slight departure from the trading stamp plan. In addition to chop suey he began serving tea—two cups for a quarter—and the quality of the tea is said to have caused a decided impetus in his business. Finally, when his business became so brisk that patrons had to await their turn in order to be served, Yee Yung introduced a

VALUABLE BARN IS BURNED TO GROUND

Building and Contents Belonging to Bentleyville Man Consumed—Had Allowed Insurance to Expire

Lightning striking the barn of A. E. McCormick, at Bentleyville, Sunday morning at about 4 o'clock, caused a fire which burned the structure to the ground. A total loss was sustained. When the flames were discovered volunteer fire fighters made diligent efforts to save the barn from being entirely consumed, but the best they could do was to save some of the hay and 100 bushels of corn consumed, together with a lot of harness which it was impossible to get out. There were no horses or other animals in the barn. The loss is reckoned at $1,000. No insurance was carried. Insurance was formerly carried on the barn, but it was allowed to expire a few weeks ago. This would have nearly covered the loss.

BLAZE CAUSED BY VAPOR TENT

Small Conflagration Results When Muslim Ignites—No Damage Done

FIREMEN CALLED OUT

When a muslim vapor tent being used in the treatment for croup of the youngest child of Dr. Edwin McKay caught fire Saturday night from a vapor lamp the child narrowly escaped being burned to death. In saving the little one from the flames Mrs. McKay had a hand burned to some extent and Miss Della Curry, the nurse, in extinguishing the flames was also slightly burned. A fire alarm was sent in but by the time the firemen arrived the flames had been extinguished with practically no damage.

Mrs. McKay was obliged to leave the room for a moment while the child was being given the treatment. Apparently everything about the vapor tent was safe when she went out. The tent down stairs then returned almost immediately and found the room full of smoke, and the tent a mass of flames. She rushed in and seized the child who had crawled as far away from the fire as possible. Then, choking, she left the room again. Miss Curry had just come in from a trip down street, and she ran to the room and started to extinguish the blaze. The alarm was turned in. Dr. J. W. Manon, a neighbor, hastened to the scene and threw bedding which had caught fire to the ground. Fortunately nothing else had taken fire.

RAID IS MADE BY POLICE

Eight Strangers Are Captured in Alleged Joint

ASSUMED NAMES GIVEN

Chief of Police C. W. Albright, and Officers McEldowney and Brickner made a raid on an alleged disorderly house at the corner of Eleventh street and McKean avenue Saturday night and four girls and the same number of men were taken in the raid. Complaints had been made of the place.

The place has been operating for only two weeks, it is stated, three sisters and the daughter of one a girl 14 years old, being the inmates. Apparently a rushing business was being done. When the raid was made the 14 year old girl was found drinking whiskey with one of the men. Forfeits were left of $5 each by all except the 14-year-old girl, who on account of her tender age, couldn't be held. At the time the forfeits were left the prisoners stated they would not likely appear. They were told to get out of town and promised to leave today. All were strangers in town and all gave assumed names.

Elizabeth Combs is Victim of Flames—Clothing Catches Fire

CALLS TO HER MOTHER

Unable to Make Her Hear She Rushes Back to Companions and Faints

Her clothing all ablaze, crying for her mother who could not hear, little Elizabeth Combs, the 5-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Combs, well known Monessen people, ran in the direction of her home Sunday then confused she ran back almost directly in the fire from which her clothing had ignited and fell fainting. Two other children were with the little girl but they were younger. Their wild screaming brought quick aid. But before anyone could arrive little Elizabeth's body had been burned almost to a crisp and there was hardly a particle of clothing left on her. The accident happened at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At 8 o'clock Sunday evening the girl died.

Little Elizabeth with the other two children were playing by a fire some rods away from their home. Elizabeth had a string. Leaning over the blaze to let the string catch fire, so she could watch the pretty fire slowly climb, her dress caught fire. In a moment her body was enveloped in flame. She rushed in the direction of her home, frantically calling to her mother. Then she became confused and rushed back to the fire and her playmates again, to fall fainting almost in the blaze. Her agonized cries had aroused the neighborhood and in a moment there was aid. Medical attention was summoned but she was too badly burned. The family is well known in Monessen and this part of the Monongahela valley.

PLEADING TO REPUBLICANS.

Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, and Governor Judson Harman, of Ohio, are about to engage in a hand to hand fight for the Pennsylvania delegates to the next national Democratic convention. Governor Harman has already invaded this State and has, it is suspected, seen the proper bosses. Governor Wilson is killed to appear in the State within the next few days and will confer with those Democratic bosses over-looked by the Ohio executive. In any event it seems certain that both the Presidential candidates will do all in their power to have the Democrats of Pennsylvania back of them in the nominating convention while the Republican candidate for the Presidency who ever he may be, will have the State back of him in the Presidential election by several hundred thousand majority.

A mighty effort has been made to play with the passions of the Republicans of Pennsylvania in the recent past but the insincerity of the political disturbers has been exposed and is now being held in real contempt. The Republican leaders of the State have been industrious in demanding clean candidates for the offices to be filled in cities, counties and the State. These efforts have simply commanded the admiration of the people and the Republican party is stronger now than it has been for many years.

The Democrats of the State have enjoyed a fight that has resulted practically in extermination. The Keystone and their allies have been exposed as political pretenders and the Republican organization has stood alone, unselfishly and determined to give to the whole people exactly what they want in State and national affairs. As a result a great army of voters who stayed away after mysterious political issues and were turning to the regular Republicans for comfort and political sanity.

WORKS WELL.

When a man in private business falls down on his job he usually gets fired, for it is a well understood axiom that if an employee does not earn money for the firm that is paying him wages it is not good business policy to retain him. In public service, however an official can prove recalcitrant to his duty and totally ignore the public service and hold on to his office to the end of his term, and even then in many instances his hold on politics is so great that he can be re-elected time and again, although he makes no bones of defying the public service and devoting his efforts to promoting private interests. It is true that the law in some instances provides for removals or impeachments, but the process is so complicated and hedged in with legal restrictions and so many loop holes provided that the law is almost never invoked, and the public suffers until death or a political revolution makes a new deal.

Now that some of the progressive western States have adopted the recall whereby the people—the employers—can have their say whether or not their hired servants are making good, many of the eastern papers are unduly alarmed, particularly as some of the States have adopted woman suffrage. The Washington Post, in referring to the case in Seattle, where the women largely recalled a mayor who was running the city on wide open policy, says that "the recall tyranny and patriotic government go together nicely," and that "the woman of Seattle have made suffrage an orgy." It seems that the professional politicians are afraid of the women, as they are not likely with the power of suffrage in their hands and the right to fire an official if he starts in to graft and pander to the vicious elements, to stand for this sort of thing. The women are usually the worst sufferers on account of the tolerated vices, and with the power to prevent them, and remove them, they see no good reason for not acting. Woman suffrage nor the recall is an orgy.

Perhaps if the recall were in force in every State of the Union some of those legislators both in Congress and the Legislatures who have been successfully blocking policies for the good of the public for years—such as the parcels post, river and road improvements, and others—would find themselves in danger of getting fired, the same as a private employee who falls down on his job, they would work more for the interests of the people. The recall is what is needed, and with the women to help there will not be so many good measures smothered in Congress and the Legislatures, nor so many cities and towns with wide open governments.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

In these days of frenzied finance and big things the popular idea of independent wealth does not fall short of a million dollars, yet the average person who possesses that sum in his mind's eye does not have a clear comprehension of what it means. Discussing a recent magazine article as to whether a million dollars can be honestly accumulated by an individual in a lifetime, the Philadelphia Inquirer gives an interesting talk along this line.

"The point is that the possibility of making a million dollars does not need to be demonstrated by argument because every one can recall for himself instances in which that sum has been accumulated by men as to whose absolute probity no shadow of a doubt could be entertained," says the Inquirer. "It is true that a million dollars is a whole lot of money, much more money than the average imagination can easily grasp. And yet there is no reason why that amount could not be saved in the course of a lifetime."

"The trouble is that most men lack the capacity for self-denial, which accumulation demands, or having it are not endowed with the money making ability. These are the two qualifications upon which attainment to the millionaire class is conducted, and of the two perhaps the first is not the least important. Any one can get rich who devotes all his thoughts and energies to that end and shrinks from no sacrifice which the realization of his ambition may require.

"Only a few months ago the case was reported of a clerk in a New York bank, who never speculated, who had never received more than a very moderate salary and had not engaged in any outside business, yet who left a fortune of over six hundred thousand dollars. He had never married. He had restricted his expenditures to absolute necessities. He had invested his surplus in gilt-edged securities and he had not enlarged his scale of living as his income grew.

"All the pleasure he took in life was in watching his heap increase, and of course, as the years went on it grew and grew with an increasing celerity. Whether the end justified the means, whether it was profitable for this man to restrict his life in saving may be questioned, but his experience shows what can be accomplished in this direction if there be first the willing mind. He did not quite reach the million mark because he was unwilling to take any chances. The man who has the money making feature on the side as an amusement. Instead of an orchestra to entertain the waiting patrons, the Celestial installed the rather lowly but nevertheless popular game of craps.

With craps and tea—two cups for a quarter—and of a decided cheering quality, the patronage of the shop suey establishment increased by leaps and bounds, as they say of real estate values in an industrial write-up. Because of the black and tan variety of the patrons, the police became suspicious, and they very inconspicuously raided the Celestial's establishment Saturday night. Nine gentlemen of various shades and colors were caught shooting craps, while the teacups were filled with plain American whisky and gin. In addition to the rounding up of the ten inmates, the police also confiscated two five gallon flagons, one containing whisky and the other gin.

In lieu of a fine of $25 imposed by Burgess Hoyt on the charge of conducting a disorderly house, Lee Yung is spending thirty days in jail, and will likely have to answer later to the charge of selling liquor illegally. The other gentlemen posted forfeits in the sum of $250 each.

As You Go.
"Clear up as you go" is an excellent text to work by—a parallel to "Never put off till tomorrow, etc.—and one that many a mother would do well to keep over before her and live up to. It is the putting-off habit that leads to accumulations of worry, and, consequently, to badly done work. If clothes need repairing, let them be repaired at once, if things are out of their proper places, put them back again, where they ought to be, before they are irretrievably lost.

Pork Favorite Chinese Food.
The Chinese eat little or no beef. The beef consumed in the empire is chiefly the food of foreigners. But the natives are exceedingly fond of pork and consume vast quantities of it. Not only is the native article an excellent grade, but Chinese pork is retailed at a price far lower than the mere cost of production in this country. American pork could not compete with that of China, even if there were no question of transportation.

Their Particular Sin.
A school for poor children having read in their chapter in the Bible the denunciations against hypocrites who "strain at a gnat and swallow a camel," were afterwards examined by the benevolent patroness, Lady, as to their recollection of the chapter. "What, in particular, was the sin of the Pharisees, children?" and the lady, "Ating camels, my lady," was the prompt reply.

Pony vs. Horse Intelligence.
I have been asked a great many times if ponies are really more intelligent than full-sized horses. They certainly appear to be. But the intelligence of any horse will develop under petting and human companionship, and there is no doubt that other horses, if given the same privileges that ponies enjoy and if their size admitted of their being handled and managed in the same way, would prove equally intelligent.—Outing.

BEING BRISK A GOOD HABIT

Children Should Be Taught Quickness in Running Errands and in Dressing Themselves.

If a child is allowed to acquire a slow, dawdling manner when told to do any particular duty it will be found very difficult to effect a cure, and this means a serious hindrance to success in after years.

Teach them while very young to do everything promptly and to finish what they have commenced. If they are sent on a message make them to clearly understand that they must go direct to the shop and not loiter on the way. Children may be seen at any time carrying a message and lingering to look at everything on the way.

I often wonder at what time the poor mother gets her messages home, when I see a child loitering about instead of walking along briskly. Quickness in dress, also, should be insisted upon. If too young to dress themselves they should be taught to keep still while the mother or sister puts on their clothing.

At a later age forbid any running about the house until fully dressed—and quickly dressed. Some little maidens are rather fond of looking in the glass while dressing and this is a habit which should be at once repressed. It not only encourages vanity but it causes the child to waste much valuable time.

Don't Expect Kindness.
There are six sorts of people at whose hands you need not expect much kindness. The narrow minded think of nobody but themselves, the lazy are too indifferent, the busy have no time to think, the rich disregard appeals for kindness, the poor have neither spirit nor ability, and the good natured fool is not capable of serving you.—Home Notes

EVERYBODY'S FRIEND

The old family doctor, of whom so few are now seen in this age of "specialists" was the valued friend and adviser of his patients. They depended on him to keep them in health, and cheer them with his counsel. He taught them the wisdom of preventing illness by watching closely after the health of the family.

Mrs. S. H. DuBois writes from her home at Hempstead, L. I.: "Vinol is an old friend of our family. We have used it for years whenever any of us need a tonic on account of being in a rundown state of health, and it always gives perfect satisfaction. We have used nine bottles this winter."

There are thousands of families who could and do say the same thing. Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, has proved its value by bringing back rugged health and strength to vast numbers of weak, rundown men, women and children. That is why we sell so much and guarantee it to give satisfaction. If it disappoints you, you can have your money back at once. Piper Brothers, Druggists, Charleroi, Pa.

New Heat Unit.

The use of gas for heating as well as lighting has made obsolete the old unit the candle power, owing to the fact that this unit rates merely the brightness of the flame, not the heating power.

Deville and more recent experimenters discovered a remarkable proportion between the light and heat of a mantle, and using this, makers are rating burners according to the units of heat given to them per unit of time in standard calories. Gas of 5,200 calories efficiency a cubic meter has been recommended as the standard.

The latest designs of burners for heat and lighting require that the gas have a fairly constant consumption, since the maximum efficiency of the burner is attained only when the relative quantities of air and gas are closely regulated. Water gas may be added to prevent excessive variation in calorific value.—America.

Land of Thunderstorms.

Gibraltar is said to be the region of the globe where it thunders oftenest, having thunderstorms on 97 days of the year.

Japanese Fruit Trees.

Among the many ways of their own that the Japanese have for doing is their system of pruning and training fruit trees. The system is called "tana" and consists in training the branches overhead on trellis work made of bamboo or wire supported on wooden posts about five and a half feet high.

This offers advantages in gathering the fruit, and not only serves to protect the trees against wind and storms, but is said to increase production. Only very light pruning is done, and that usually in the winter time. This system is generally adopted for pears and vines, less often for apples and plums.—Youth's Companion.

Uses of Nitrate of Soda.

Nitrate is the only nitrogen salt that can be used in solution, as all the other soluble salts of nitrogen become fixed as soon as they come in contact with the soil. However, they become available in a short time. The released sodium may correct soil acidity or may liberate calcium, potassium or magnesium from the soil.

How Perfume Is Weighed.

It was the Italian physician Salvani who devised a microbalance of such extreme delicacy that it clearly demonstrated the loss of weight of a substance by volatilization. Thus the invisible perfume floating off in the air is indirectly weighed.

The essential part of the apparatus is a very thin thread of glass, fixed at one end and extended horizontally. The microscopic objects to be weighed are placed upon the glass thread near its free end and the amount of flexure produced is observed with a microscope magnifying 100 diameters.

A mote weighing one thousandth of a milligram is said perceptibly to bend the thread.—Buffalo Courier.

TAME GULLS OF SHETLAND

Each Family in Lerwick Has Its Own Flock Which the Children Feed.

There are many small villages in the world that have only one street; but Lerwick, in Shetland, besides having only a single street possesses only one tree, and it is not a very tall one either. There are no land birds there, not even a sparrow; but the sea gulls are plentiful.

The inhabitants of Shetland are very proud of their tree and very kind to the gulls, of whom the children make pets. Children who are brought for the first time to see the wonders of one-streeted Lerwick are always shown, as a great curiosity, "the only tree in Shetland."

The sea gulls are the sparrows of Lerwick; and as such they have a greater share in the town's life than the sparrows of London. In the morning you will note that a sea gull sits on every chimney pot. Sea gulls swoop and hover over every roof in town. The air is full of their strange, high, plaintive, haunting cries.

Every house has its own familiar sea gull and every street its own band of them. But, according to the Fruit Magazine, they never mix. The children in each house have a pet name for their own particular sea gull; and, having called them by those names, they feed them every day.

Each sea gull knows what is meant for him. No bird attached to one house ever seeks to eat the food scattered from the house next door. He does not dare to do so. So all day long the sea gulls hover and call over the roofs of Lerwick.

The people of the town if they come across a little pile of rice laid upon the roadway step over it with care. They know that it has been placed there for some sea gull. And at night the sea gulls leave their appointed chimney pots and fly gracefully away to their resting places on the rocks of the Isle of Noss.

Motoring at Its Best.

Few motorists know of motoring in all its fullness. They drive along country roads for a hundred miles or so, through towns so closely set that they virtually run through one long village, and they think they have motored. They cross the ocean and enjoy the perfect roads of France and Switzerland, and imagine they have experienced all there is in life in the motor car; but no one has ever been brought to a full realization of what motoring really is, or what the wonderful modern machine of man's creative genius is really capable of doing until they have sat in a racing car side by side with an expert driver and tasted the sport as it is under such conditions. Lord Byron once wrote: "What a delightful thing is a turnpike road, such a means of speeding the earth as scarce the eagle in the broad air can accomplish." He certainly spoke in prophecy of the motor car, and especially of the racing machine, which leaves distance and shrinks space into the most tiny proportions.—The Cambrian.

OLD FASHIONED FAMILY PEW

In That Rested the Strength of the Church, and It Should Be Restored.

One sometimes hears a deal of nonsense about the danger of creating a prejudice against religion in the mind of a child by making him attend church once a week. The danger would seem to be about one-tenth as great as that of arousing a prejudice against education by sending him to school twice a day. In both cases the remedy lies in the good sense of the parents and their estimate of the value of religion and education carefully instilled into the child's mind.

The strength of the church has been in the old-fashioned pew, with father at one end and mother at the other, and a stairway of more or less restless children. From that pew have gone out the upright, devout, consecrated men and women who have loved the church and maintained her worship and done her work in their several generations. For the sake of the church, and especially for the sake of the children, let it be restored.

If it be impossible for the children to attend both Sunday school and the church service, this writer would by all means teach them the catechism at home and bring them to church that they may learn to worship God in the congregation of his people.—Southern Churchman.

Monarchs of England.

The first to rule over all England was Egbert, King of Wessex, who united all the various petty kingdoms and became King of England in 827. The greater kingdom was disrupted from 878 to 958, when the Danes ruled north of the Thames. In the latter year King Edgar reunited the kingdom and since that time it has never been partitioned. Between Edmund Ironside (1016) and Edward the Confessor (1042) three Danish kings ruled all England. Canute, Harold I. and Hardicanute. The first king of Great Britain was James I. (1603). The first king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was George III. From the conquest of Ireland in 1172 by Henry II. the kings of England were styled Lord of Ireland until the assumption of the title King of Ireland by Henry VIII., and thereafter his title was used until the act of union in 1801. The Imperial sovereignty of India was assumed by Queen Victoria.

Cheap Mode of Living.

With no rent to pay, no street car fares or other of the usual unavoidable city expenses to meet, the large and canal boat men of the Netherlands live possibly the most frugal lives of any of the urban working classes in Europe. They, with their families, exist in the hulls of their craft. The rooms are small, with little ventilation, and necessarily low to enable the boats to pass under the bridges. The decks form the children's playground. Chickens are sometimes kept on the boat and consume the garbage.

The Broken Heart.

"The party will recover from this check," said Mayor Craig of Covington, apropos of a temporary setback. "They say the party will be broken. I'd reply that it will be about as much broken as young Lansing's heart. A chorus girl who had refused young Lansing said to a friend: 'I have broken his heart, I fear.' 'You have. You certainly have,' the friend replied. 'You've broken it right in half.' 'In half? What do you mean?' 'I mean that he takes two girls out to supper every night now!'"

Bridegroom Who Had Forgotten to Register His New Better Half Quickly Makes Amends.

In spick and span raiment, carrying each a new suit case and a timid expression, they entered the Hotel Narragansett and inquired the way unhesitatingly to the desk, says the Providence Journal.

Spying a kernel of rice on the youth's hat brim, the clerk smiled covertly whirled the register with an encouraging flourish and placed the linked pen in the nerveless hand.

"John B., New Bedford, Mass.," wrote the youth, pushed back his hat, upset the kernel of rice and wiped his beaded brow.

"But, er—the lady?" inquired the clerk soothingly.

"She's my wife," quoth the youth, straightening up, bristling.

"She ought to be registered," advised the clerk thoughtfully.

"Ain't you put me down?" the lady murmured, looking over the youth's shoulder.

"O, sure I—I forgot. Gimme the pen," said the youth, quickly.

Whereupon he smiled and wrote: "And my wife, Rosie!"

Valuable Jamaican Woods.

The most valuable of the Jamaican woods are the bull tree, ironwood, haboe juniper, cedar, mahogany, lignum vitae, ebony, fiddlewood, yoke, prickly yellow, broad leaf, soapwood, cashew and calabash. Hardwood is used principally for railway sleepers, telegraph poles and fence posts, cedars used chiefly for native shingles and furniture and other woods are used in building houses in the highlands. Unfortunately the streams are not large enough to log them to the coast, but there is no reason why portable engines and sawmills should not be utilized so as to turn these woods into the market.

Nails In Hard Wood.

It will be found almost impossible to drive thin steel nails into hard wood, for the moment you hit them hard enough to puncture the wood they bend over on themselves.

Many people employ the use of a small gimlet to bore the hole destined to hold the nail, and few people know that if yellow soap is rubbed on the nail it can be driven in the hardest wood with ease.

This trick was learned by a carpenter, who discovered it accidentally.

Now whenever he is working with hard wood he keeps a cake of soap near by and sticks it full of nails, using them as he needs them.

He also has a deep hole cut in the handle of his favorite hammer and keeps it filled with soap in which to stick the nails if the cake of soap is not conveniently near.

How Tourists Economize.

A comedy of economy is reported from St. Moritz. A stout couple, accompanied by a son and daughter who were also "thick," as the Germans translate stout, entered a crowded hotel at the busy time of lunch and ordered one lunch at table d'hôte. The father sat down and finished two helpings of soup and all the bread near him and left the table, his place being taken for the entrees by his wife, who had been waiting with her children in the hotel corridor until her husband appeared.

The young man then took his mother's place to attack the joint, and he was followed by his sister for the sweets, all doing justice to the menu. In the crowd the tourists did not notice the unusual lunch, but the head waiter did and when asked for the bill presented one for four lunches. The paterfamilias grumbled a good deal—and paid!

Jealousy.

"So you disapprove of the modern drama?" "Yes," said the constable. "I can't help thinking there's something wrong with these plays we've been getting. The public mind is liable to get confused. I never yet saw a play that made a policeman appear as affable or smart or heroic as a burglar or a confidence man."

The Average Man's Life.

Uncle Pennywise says: "What a drab life the average man leads. I never went to a masked ball, or a polo tournament or a house party. Never ate a truffle or uttered an epigram. I never even tasted Burgundy, although half my favorite characters in fiction have wallowed in it."

Wifely Ideal Too High.

The man who is as good as his wife thinks he ought to be is ripe for heaven.

And Then They Blame the Luck.
Opportunity has knocked at many a man's door when he was down at the corner saying "Here's good luck."

We Want to See You----- We'll Treat You Rightly

We know you don't like to be pulled and hauled all over the store, passed through the gauntlet of clerks and finally turned over to the proprietor simply because you don't find what you want, and you don't want some little whippersnapper of a clerk to insist upon your taking what you don't want. You have, doubtlessly been through this ordeal, and vowed that you would never go into that store again. You're right—you don't have to.

Shoes should stand on their merits and a first-class shoe house always has a large enough assortment for a customer to be suited without having something forced on him which he forever dislikes. Come our way. If we cannot possibly suit you we will treat you kindly just the same. One thing certain—if you can't find anything to suit you in our store, you can't find it in Charleroi. And, furthermore, if you don't find that our prices are right, don't spend a cent with us. Fair proposition hey?
